“A Force More Powerful: A Century of Nonviolent Conflict”

A selection from the series documenting one of the twentieth century’s most important lessons – how nonviolent action can overcome oppression.

A Force More Powerful explores how popular movements have battled entrenched regimes or military forces with weapons very different from guns and bullets.

The greatest misconception about conflict is that violence is the ultimate form of power. But throughout the twentieth century, people have proven otherwise.

A Force More Powerful dramatizes how ordinary people throughout the world, working against all kinds of opponents, have taken up nonviolent weapons and prevailed.

Free and open to the public. Discussion will follow.
